It's really easy, the result is great. 2. Wix Video Speedo The product description tells you everything you need to know about this app. In a nutshell, it allows you to stream video in real-time over the web, at the highest possible quality. There are plenty of YouTube-like features, including the ability to share videos in social networks or embed them into your website. 3. Helium Unlike most of the apps featured here, this one doesn't offer you an easy way to make your own loops. You need to upload your own video and design a unique soundtrack using an on-screen editor. 4. Forgot It! This is a website with a free VSTS for Windows which you can add to your own website for creating and distributing videos with customizable video templates. The program is not only free, but there's also no annoying advertisements. 5. Video Capture The program comes with two types of video players: looping one and video editor. It's easy to use, and you can even upload your videos to YouTube. 6. RedVideo The free video editing software offers you two video players and an editor. It supports the MP4, AVI, MOV and MPG formats, making it easy to upload your own video clips to the program. 7. Nucleo This free site uses the big Nucmero player to play the video and its own Nucleo player to allow you to add pre-recorded music. It can also be embedded directly into a website. 8. Fusion This free app offers you the ability to add subtitles, background music and playlists to videos. It can also create a free website that allows you to upload any videos that you like. 9. Video Shoot This program works the same as most of the ones already featured here. You can also use the free website to upload your own videos, share your creations with friends and have fun with the video player. 10. iLoop This free app offers the simplest way of creating video loops. The software creates a timeline from where you can drag and drop the video and set the length of the loop. 11. Video Grabber This program is packed with features including live preview and a free website for sharing videos with other users. It's easy to use and can be downloaded 82157476af
